3.5 Contact Hours

Description: We all want to believe that someone cares about our children and us. Caring is the nourishment of life, and when families entrust their children to schools and classroom teachers, how that caring and other essential information is communicated to families is crucial. How can school personnel make those vital connections with families? How can you communicate clearly and effectively with families? This workshop will be packed with information to enhance and increase your communication skills. Impact your parent conferences with exciting new ideas such as student led conferences. We'll talk about student portfolios and how to have students take charge of their content.
